

ABSTRACT

A Voice Over Internet Protocol gateway support of supplementary services in a communication system. In one embodiment, a gateway includes a main state machine that is adapted to process a plurality of different type supplemental services with a single process.